

Crossing the States for CrossWay

Bruce and Debbie

As I travel in the States, I look forward to sharing how CrossWay is providing clean water wells for those who have none in Ethiopia, Kenya, Liberia, and Nicaragua, as well as schooling for orphans and the blind, medical clinics, reaching out to prisoners, ministering to kids' sports teams, and conducting much needed Bible training for local pastors.

March, 2015

Renewing old friendships I just returned from a missionary conference at Chantilly Bible Church in Chantilly, VA (outside of Washington, D.C.). This was my 3rd or 4th visit with them over the last few years and was encouraging, as always. Here you can see me in an animated conversation with Jim Keller in front of the CrossWay missionary display. Jim and his wife, Sue, are members of the church, and they are also missionaries themselves. In fact, they've accompanied one of our CrossWay teams to help us conduct training in Nicaragua in the past and are planning to go with us again later this year. It was a lot of fun catching up with them.

Chantilly is a great church that has been a friend and supporter of CrossWay for years. I was also able to reconnect with Mike Barlotta, a very skilled teacher in the church. He went with us to Liberia a last year where he and I taught in our pastors' conference. He was a superb addition to the CrossWay team, and all the pastors said how much they got out of his teaching!

Reconnecting with Mike Barlotta.

With Britton in Nicaragua.

Got your passport? If any of you would ever be interested in going with us on a missions trip, please contact the CrossWay office, or me personally, at the bottom of this letter, and we'll be glad to explain how to go about it. We sometimes take individuals or church groups. A couple years ago my daughter's teenage brother-in-law, Britton, joined a group of teens from a couple American churches who went with us to minister to the kids in Nicaragua. He did a great job, and everyone loved having him along!

More trips As I told you in my last prayer letter, I'm trying to do more travel here in the U.S. and take shorter trips so I'm not away from my wife and son as much. The Lord has begun opening some doors to make that a reality and in only 2 more weeks I will be representing CrossWay at another missions conference – this one hosted by Marantha Bible Church in West Palm Beach, Florida. In addition to being able to share what the Lord has been doing lately, I will also be able to reconnect with Norm & Sandy Speiers, former classmates of mine from my days at Florida Bible College. They helped found this church, and it's been over 40 years since I've seen them, so this will be exciting.

Around April it also looks like I may be able to visit Frontier School of the Bible in La Grange, Wyoming. This is a wonderful Christian college which shares the same burden we have of telling others the clear message of salvation through faith alone in Christ alone. I look forward to sharing with the students how CrossWay is providing clean water wells for those who have none in Ethiopia, Kenya, Liberia, and Nicaragua, as well as schooling for orphans and the blind, medical clinics, reaching out to prisoners, ministering to kids' sports teams, and conducting much needed Bible training for local pastors. I'm anxious to hear from these dedicated students how the Lord is moving in their own lives, too! Sometime over the summer, perhaps, there's a trip to Nicaragua in the works as well, but no date on that yet.

Thank you all for all your faithful prayers on my behalf and for CrossWay International. The Lord has certainly answered them, and we're seeing many fruits! He recently has also been opening doors of ministry for us in the Philippines and China! We'll have to see how those ministries develop.

God Bless You All,

Bruce
